The game goes for $3.99 with no in-app purchases or advertisements. The Cube Escape series is a long-running series of puzzle games with escape room and hidden object puzzle elements. The developers round out the experience with achievements, support for about a dozen languages, and a minimal game UI that puts the game world first and foremost. There isn't a whole lot wrong with this one, but the controls are occasionally wonky. Vodobanka is one of the more unique puzzle games on Android. The game shows you a few illustrated panels. Basically, you wander around the game world in search of clues and puzzle solutions. The player takes control of a SWAT team. All three games feature fun puzzles, a distinctive art style, and simple game mechanics. The other two fall between those two price tags. Gorogoa is an excellent puzzle game. There are usually one or two new additions to each franchise every year and they're all pretty good. Players explore a world looking for clues, unlocking secrets, and gathering the story from snippets of story from the game world. They have two excellent puzzle games. The game has a variety of colorful characters, plenty of levels and puzzles, and even some stuff to unlock. These are classics. They boast a more relaxing experience rather than challenging. These are classics in the puzzle game space on mobile and we recommend them highly. Bridge Constructor Portal is a cross-over game between Bridge Constructor and Portal. They each have fun little stories as well. They are rather expensive, though, so we recommend playing as much as possible in the refund time to make sure you like them. Faraway 3: Arctic Escape is another newer puzzle game from 2018. They use MC Escher-inspired puzzle mechanics. This list changes fast as new puzzle champions emerge. She can rewind and replay various moments in her life. The game has primarily Bridge Constructor mechanics. You assemble the puzzle pieces to continue on the journey. It's an excellent puzzle game. The third game in the series introduced multiple endings and a slightly heavier narrative. Finally, the most recent game, Old Sins, takes place in a dollhouse. The first game in the series is $0.99 and the most recent is $4.99. The previous games are also fairly inexpensive. ROOMS: The Toymaker's Mansion is one of the newer puzzle games on the list. Players also unlock special abilities like transportation bombs, and the ability to move every room at once. You build a bridge from one end of the level to the other with a variety of strategy and parts. They are also usually fairly short games. You move through a mansion and each room moves like a puzzle piece. Yes, the adorable pink puff ball that eats stuff. The third one has nine free levels and the rest cost $3.99. Part Time UFO is a goofy puzzle game from the developers of Kirby. It features a variety of puzzles similar to console games like The Witness. This is also the third game in the series and the previous two are pretty good as well. It started with simple viral games like 2048 and evolved into genuinely enjoyable experiences like Monument Valley. These days, you can find some seriously good puzzle games on Android in terms of both graphics and game play. You have to adjust your strategies accordingly. They otherwise make for outstanding horror-puzzle games. The Monument Valley games do look fantastic, though. Price: Free / $2.99 / Up to $9.99 Blue Wizard Digital is a developer on Google Play. However, the inclusion of multiple endings gives the later titles some replay value. All four games have some similar elements, including outstanding graphics, escape room elements, and clever puzzle designs. The first game includes a handful of levels along with the Forgotten Shores DLC ($1.99 extra). The goal is to breach a structure and get the hostile people before they execute the hostages. The neighbor sets up defenses after each break-in based on your entry and exist strategies. The Eyes of Ara is one of the newer puzzle games on the list. Price: Free / Up to $8.99-$11.99 each Life is Strange is an outstanding adventure-puzzle-drama game. There are two different franchises by Rusty Lake. The Professor Layton franchise is a series of puzzle games from the Nintendo DS. Life is Strange: Before the Storm adds to the story quite a bit, but it's a little rougher around the edges than the first game. You twist and turn portions of the level in order to progress. Thus, you break into the house over and over again. The premium version is also inexpensive with most of the content being available in the free version. The second is Friday the 13th. The developer, Headup, also recently launched Bridge Constructor: The Walking Dead (Google Play link) if you prefer a zombie theme. Here are the best puzzle games for Android. Amanita Design is a publisher on Google Play. You solve puzzles for time killing enjoyment. It has a lot of the same ideas, but over 100 levels of gory goodness. This game is also free to play for folks with Google Play Pass. This may not be a puzzle game in the classic sense, but the main mechanic is a puzzle element so we're counting it. This was a very popular game on PC and the mobile game plays about the same but with mobile controls. Each job is a puzzle. Gone are the days of super simple mechanics and graphics with goofy ideas, with intense and complex apps with creative stories and good graphics. Android Games Best Apps Free Android Games Square Enix Telltale Games It's a fairly simple puzzle game at heart. They have three very excellent puzzle games with Samorost 3, Botanicula, Chuchel and the popular classic Machinarium. Players put the panels in order to tell a story. The game contains 144 total levels across four mansions. There is a prequel for this game available as well, but it might need an update or two before we would fully recommend it. The developers, Level-5, have brought a few of them to Android as mobile ports. This is a great puzzle game. You have various boards and each board needs solved. The first is Slayaway Camp. You play a serial killer and you avoid the cops while you slaughter people. The first two are classic puzzle games. It follows the life of a Max, a high school girl with special powers. Most of those games are free except the most recent one, Cube Escape: Paradox (it costs $1.99 for the full version). It contains 60 levels (test chambers), plenty of Portal references (including voice acting), and some extra stuff like Google Play Games achievements. The second game is a bit longer but not by much. The Portal mechanics make each level more fun and difficult. In fact, it's one of the most popular genres on the entire platform. Price: $3.99 + $1.99 / $4.99 Monument Valley 1 and 2 are some of the most popular puzzle games on mobile. This is a port of a console game and a pretty good one, too. You rewind and redo various moments until you get the desired results. Bridge Constructor Portal goes for $4.99 with no in-app purchases or ads. These games are not for children or adults with weak stomachs. Slayaway Camp goes for $2.99. Price: $0.99 / $1.99 / $3.99 / $4.99 The Room franchise is one of the oldest and most successful puzzle game franchises on mobile. The series puts you on an adventure to solve puzzles and solve cases for Professor Layton. It plays in a 3D world with exploration and surprisingly decent graphics. It's an interesting method of storytelling and the puzzle elements are simple enough to do. However, it's still a good game with a unique premise. Puzzle games used to be a simple genre with a simple idea. It doesn't have the best graphics, but the concept is pretty neat as players clear rooms on their way to the objective. None of them have in-app purchases or ads. It relies heavily on the artwork to convey the story rather than making the player read a bunch of stuff. Price: Free trial / $14.99 Hello Neighbor is one of the most unique puzzle games on mobile. Price: Free / Varies per game Rusty Lake is one of the most popular puzzle game developers on Google Play. The game has thousands of illustrations for you to organize, all of which feed into the game's main story line. It reminds us a lot of classic puzzle-adventure games like Myst. The art style is definitely to be applauded. This one is rather expensive. However, there are no in-app purchases after you purchase the game. It also has Google Play Games support for achievements. Friday the 13th is a free download with in-app purchases, but it's not a freemium game. The graphics and mechanics are good and the story is entertaining. However, the genre ballooned in a big way on mobile. This game is also free if you have Google Play Pass. You can get Layton: Curious Village, Layton: Diabolical Box, and Layton's Mystery Journey on Google Play. The criticism is a little more harsh due to its price tag. The three together should provide a decent amount of entertainment. The games features comical dialog along with goofy situations that help sculpt the atmosphere of these games. These usually cost money, but never more than a few bucks. There is more than enough content here to justify the title's $4.99 price tag and there are no in-app purchases or ads to ruin anything. There are 96 story levels and 48 special ability levels that takes place in a little bit fresh. There are also horror and thriller elements with this one. All four games go for $4.99 up front. There are four games in a series at the time of this writing. You fly around in a UFO while doing odd jobs for the village townspeople. The other series, Rusty Lake, is a more premium point-and-click adventure-puzzle game that keeps things in the same universe as the Cube Escape series. The game has 18 stages with a variety of puzzles in each one along with a story line. Your neighbor is doing some weird stuff and you want to check it out. It has a bunch of levels, including some added as recently as 2021. It's not the most graphically intense game out there, but we like it anyway. You figure out puzzles to progress until you finish the game. The games aren't difficult.
